Architectural Design Document
TDT4240 - Group A14

Framework:
Android
Quality Attributes:
Primary: Modifiability
Secondary: Useability

Group members:
Bremnes, Jan A. S.

Johanessen, Stig Tore

Hesselberg, Håkon

Kirø, Magnus L.

Randby, Simon

Tørresen, Håvard

February 25, 2013

Contents

primary + secondary quality attribute.

introduction

Project description document structure and phase (requirement)
game description

Architectural drivers / architectural significant requirements (asr)

the main drivers(functional, quality and business requirements) that affect the architecture the most

Stakeholders and concerns

the stakeholders and their concerns.

Selection of Architectural views (viewpoint)

* a list of views that you will use in the architectural design, their purpose, target audience(which stakeholders are you addressing), and what notation will be used for each view.
    * all groups need to choose at least a logical view, a process view and a development view or similar.

architectual tactics

describe the tactics for architecture to meet the quality requirements.

Architectural and design pattern selection of arcitectural/design patterns to be used in your architectue..

views

document architecture using your selected views (at least logical, process and development) through diagrams and supporting/explaining text.

consistency among views descripion inconsistencies among the vieas in your architecture.

architectural rationale

hehe you will explain why you have chosen the architecture will work and fulfill the quality, business and the functional requirements.

issues

describe issues you faced working with and describing the architecture.

references

A list of any references books, articles, web-pages, documents etc, that you have used.

changes

to be describes changes carried out with this document from first draft until final delivery including all improvements based on feedack from course staff and others.